The abstract must be submitted ~~by February 7, 2025~~ by February 14, 2025.

Abstract submissions

Abstract submissions are welcome; if accepted, they will have to be presented orally and in person during the Conference.

The submitted abstracts must be in line with one of the proposed four thematic lines: children (lived experiences and needs of trans children and their transition processes, self-esteem, wellbeing, celebrating their bodies); youth (experiences and needs of trans youth and their transition processes, with special focus on the experiencing of bodies, pleasure, sexualities, erotica, love); care and support (from any professional field: health, education, social work, and others); and society and culture (social environment, beliefs, prejudices, discriminations, violence, values, support networks, role models, activism, legislation, mass media, social media).

The abstracts can include:

- Scientific research studies. In this case, they should be structured as follows: Introduction, Objective, Methodology, Results, Discussion and Conclusions. The sections may be adapted if necessary and according to the type of study.
- Personal and/or professional experiences. In this case, a free structure describing the experiences in detail is allowed.

Bibliographic references in APA7 format (American Psychological Association, 2020) can be added in both cases. These will not be included in the minimum and maximum word count.

Assessment and acceptance of abstracts

The Evaluation Committee will anonymously assess the abstracts according to:

- Formal criteria: word count; linguistic correction; following the template; references, if applicable, in APA7 format; etc.
- Criteria of relevance, suitability, value of the contribution, quality, etc.

The decision of the Evaluation Committee regarding whether or not to accept the abstracts will be notified before 21 March 2025.

Registering for the Conference is not necessary before knowing the decision. If the decision is favourable, final acceptance of the abstract will require at least one of the authors of the abstract to be registered for the Conference so the abstract can be given in person during the event.

Presentation of the abstracts

The accepted abstracts will be presented orally and in person during the abstracts Session at the Conference. The presentation will last 10 minutes followed by a discussion with 5 minutes allocated. The presentation will be given in the same language as the abstract was submitted. The Conference language will be Spanish and English; there will be simultaneously interpreting service between both languages throughout the Conference.

Accreditations and publication of the accepted abstracts.

The signatories of the abstract will be accredited as having participated as presenting an abstract after the conference. The presented abstracts will be included in a digital compendium that will be published as the Conference Proceedings, with the relevant ISBN and Legal Deposit assigned; they will be indexed in Dialnet for optimum dissemination. Any text developed from the work presented in the abstracts may be subsequently published, without any restriction, in scientific journals or other media.
